President's Message Condensed Briefly.

Pays tribute to the character of the late President McKinley.

Discusses anarchy at length, denies that it is a product of "social discontent" and recommends vigorous action for its suppression.

Defends concentration of wealth and trust formations, but admits necessity for stringent Government supervision and calls for "publicity" as the first step.

Takes ground against any general tariff changes, but recommends reciprocity when American interests will not be endangered by reduction of tariff duties.

Indorses subsidies to promote the growth of the merchant marine.

Recommends amendments to Interstate Commerce law with a view to increasing the powers of the commission.

Favors re-enactment of Chinese exclusion law and advises measures looking to the protection of American labor.

Warmly recommends reclamation of arid lands of the West and preservation of forests and game.

Vigorously calls for army reforms and additions to the navy.

Monroe Doctrine reiterated.

An Inevitable Lesson.

With the convening of Congress yesterday the American people will demand an earnest consideration of the allied evils of trustism and the high protective tariff which will have for material results a needed and effective restriction of the trusts and a revision of the tariff in the interests of American consumers.

Only by a deliberate and unmistakable dodging of responsibility can the present Congress avoid action on these issues. Even Republican sentiment in the Northwestern States demands tariff revision. There promises to be a strong Republican minority movement in favor of a lightening of the tariff tax on the people. At the same time the attempted consolidation of the great railway systems of the Northwest gives a tremendous additional vitality to the issue of trust regulation. The truth is made apparent that the powers of the monopolistic trusts must be restricted for the public safety.

These two issues are unquestionably the most pressing to come before the present Congress; yet there is every likelihood that no definite action will be taken on them, or even that the proper consideration and debate will be allowed. The Republican majority in the Senate and House of Representatives, despite the fact of Republican anti-trust and anti-trust sentiment in the Northwest, will do exactly what the great monopoly interests dictate. The monopolies will command hands off the problems of trust regulation and tariff revision. That they have already done so, indeed, is apparent in the character of the news now coming from the national capital.

About the best that can be hoped for from the session of Congress now about to begin is a Republican manifestation of hostility to the people on the tariff and trust issues which will intensify public sentiment against the party of monopoly and subsidy privileges. In the Congressional campaign of 1902 and the Presidential campaign of 1904 these issues should be peculiarly vital and logically paramount. And for their proper settlement the American people must look to the Democratic party. This will be the teaching of the Congressional session beginning next Monday.—St. Louis Republic.

"About five years ago I was troubled with catarrh of the lower bowel," says C. T. Chisholm, 484 Dearborn Ave., Chicago, and although I consulted several eminent physicians who prescribed for me, I found their remedies failed to in any way relieve me, and the trouble almost became chronic. After suffering several months, I one day concluded to try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and I beg to assure you that I was most agreeably surprised to find after taking two doses of the remedy that I was completely relieved of the disease that had cost me so much trouble and annoyance. I am thankful to say that I have not suffered from it since." For sale by M. Craven.

The Country Editor.

In his argument opposing a bill introduced in the Missouri Legislature proposing to reduce the meager allowance made newspapers for printing the election ballots, Senator Clay Heather said many truthful things of the country newspaper editor. "No man in the community in which he resides and does business" said the Senator, "does more for the public and receives less for it than the country editor. If all the space he employs in booming the town, in helping individuals, in making statesmen—sometimes out of pretty raw material—were paid for even at half the legal rate, he would be the richest man in the country."

Few country editors are rich, but they are more service to the community where they live than the wealthiest man. They are in the forefront of every movement for progress. They do the work and leave the emoluments to others. A good, clean, honest country newspaper and most country news papers are good and clean and honest—helps on every worthy cause and deserves every encouragement. It fights the party battles, holds up the hands of the reformer and makes the scoundrel afraid. "I am opposed to this bill. No paper in my county would print the ballot at the pitiful price named. They are not paupers. But, for the amount of splendid service they render, they ought to be millionaires."

Good Church Member.

A story is told of Henry Ward Beecher that once upon a time in order to meet an engagement he had to drive twenty-five miles in the country. The driver of the team seemed proud of his horse, and impressed Mr. Beecher that he wanted to show him off. He began by letting the horse go at rather an unusual speed. Mr. Beecher said to the driver, "It seems to me that you are driving your horse too fast. I am afraid that he will give out before we get there." The man replied, "You don't know that horse. He starts fast, gets faster all the way, never tires and never kicks." Beecher turned to the man with a merry twinkle in his eye and said: "I wish your horse was a member of my church."

A suggestion to Farmers.

There are many farmers who find it difficult to occupy their entire time during the fall and winter months. Why not take up the old farm and study field by field from every standpoint. There may perhaps be an old reservoir or pond of no special use at present, which could be converted into a valuable water supply for irrigating purposes at little or no expense. These problems cannot be worked out without being carefully considered. The question of the water supply on every farm is one which should receive more careful attention from every farmer than is usually given it. With very little work the course of a stream may be diverted in such a manner as to be of much value for the irrigation of certain field crops during the summer months.

Postal Savings Bank Again.

During the next session of Congress it is more than likely that an effort will be made to secure legislation looking toward the adoption of the postal saving bank system in the United States.

The arguments which the friends of this proposed measure make in its behalf are worthy of consideration. In the first place, it is claimed that the system will inspire confidence on the part of small depositors, since it will have back of it the resources of the federal government, and that on account of the absolute security which it offers it will prove an incentive to thrift. In the second place, it is claimed that the system can be maintained without any very great expense to the government, since it is only necessary to provide for an extension in each postoffice.

If the system is put into effect, it will receive in a large measure the pressure which is now brought to bear upon the money order department of the government, and what will be saved in this direction will contribute largely toward defraying the expenses of the system proposed.

Most of the European countries have adopted the system with good results; and if it works satisfactorily abroad, there seems to be no reason why it should not be put on trial at home.

Decides Fate of Fugitives.

Washington, Nov. 28.—The Supreme Court of the United States listened to argument in a case which may decide the right of the Governor of Indiana to decline to return ex-Gov. Taylor, of Kentucky, and Charles Finley to Kentucky for trial. The question of extradition from one State to another is involved. The case is that of Benjamin D. Greene, John F. Gaynor, William T. Gaynor and Edward F. Gaynor, who were indicted at Savannah, Ga., charged with having conspired with former Captain Carter, of the United States army, to defraud the Government.

The question involved is a new one in the Supreme Court. The decision is expected to lay down a rule that must be adhered to in extradition controversies between States.

In this case the legality of the indictment is in question, because, as it alleges, the grand jury was not drawn and impaneled according to law. It is also asserted that there are defects in the indictments which warrant the defendants in resisting extradition.

Kentucky lawyers are here watching the case with keen interest and express the belief that the decision, when it comes, will be of such character that the Governor of Indiana can be required to surrender Taylor and Finley.

Asked President for a Match.

Out in the Zoological Park the other day a young man walked up to a gentleman and asked for a match to light his cigarette. The gentleman gave him the match and, reaching down in his pocket drew out and proffered him a cigar which was declined with thanks. Then the two fell into conversation, and it developed that they had each been in Montana and agreed that it was a great country. "How I came to go to Montana," remarked the young man, "I was reading a description of that country from Roosevelt, now the President, and when I visited the country I was struck with the accuracy of the description."

"Well, I am glad to hear you say that," said the gentleman as he walked away.

The young man stared after him. A park policeman came up and touched him on the arm and said: "What did the President say to you?"

The President was taking an outing all alone.

Get Well and Keep Well.

The True source of health at last found. Good news for the sick.

New Ten Commandments.

I. Thou shalt not go away from home to do thy trading, nor thy sor, nor thy daughter.

II. Thou shalt patronize thy home servant, also the printer, and they shall patronize thee. Make haste, therefore, for that which will cause thy countenance to shine with intelligence and bring prosperity to both.

III. Thou shalt employ thine own mechanics, that they may not be driven away from thy home to find bread for their little ones. Thou shalt also consider him as thy neighbor above all them that dwell in a strange town.

IV. Thou shalt not ask credit, as thy goods cost much money, and the merchant's brain is burdened with bills. His children clamor daily for bread, and his wife abideth at home for the lack of such raiment as adorneth her sister. "Blessed, yes, thrice blessed is the man that pays debt."

V. Thou shalt not ask for reduced prices for thine "influence," for behold, the guile is in thine heart and the merchant readeth it like an open book. He laugheth thee to scorn and shouteth to his clerk, "ha, ha!"

VI. Thou shalt do whatever lieth in thine power to encourage and promote the welfare of thine own people.

VII. Thou shalt not suffer the voice of pride to overcome thee, and if other towns entice thee, consent them not, for thou mayest be deceived.

VIII. Thou shalt spend thy evenings at home, that they return whence they come and give nourishment to such as come after thee.

IX. Thou shalt not bear false witness against the town where in thou dwellest, but speak well of it to all men.

P. Thou shalt keep these commandments and teach them to thy children to third and fourth generations, that they may be made to flourish and grow in plenty when thou art laid to rest with thy fathers.—Author unknown.

Important Elections.

Next year four Judges of the Court of Appeals are to be chosen to succeed Judges White, Guffy, DuRelle and Paynter, says the Paducah News Democrat. In Judge White's district in the extreme western end of the State, Henderson, Webster, Hopkins and Christian counties being those on the eastern boundary, there are already four or five candidates, including Judge White, of Carlisle; Judge Dorsey, of Henderson; Judge Nunn, of Crittenden; Judge Robbins, of Graves and Judge Cook, of Calloway. The district is largely Democratic.

In Judge Guffy's district, composed of Davies, McLean, Breckinridge, Ohio, Grayson and nearly all of the counties of the Third Congressional District—seventeen counties in all—there are two Democrats announced—Judge Settle, of Warren, and Judge McBeath, of Grayson, and there may be others. Judge Guffy is expecting the Republican nomination and will probably get it. The district is closely divided between Reeves, of Todd, seven years ago by nearly 1,200, and as late as 1900 the district gave a Republican majority of 500 or 600. However, there is no apprehension that a Democrat strong with the people cannot be elected.

Judge DuRelle's district is composed of Jefferson county only. He is a Republican, but present indications are that he will be succeeded by a Democrat.

Judge Paynter represents the district lying on the Ohio river from Covington to Catlettsburg, and it is heavily Democratic. He will probably have no opposition.

A Startling Surprise.

Very few could believe in looking at A. T. Hoadley, a healthy robust blacksmith of Tilden Ind., that for 10 years he suffered such tortures from rheumatism as few could endure and live. But a wonderful change followed his taking Electric Bitters. "Two bottles, wholly cured me," he writes, "and I have not felt a twinge in over a year." They regulate the kidneys, purify the blood and cure rheumatism, neuralgia, nervousness, improve digestion and give perfect health. Fifty c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at T. E. Paul's and W. H. Wilkinson, Liberty.
